the hanging garden party

is series of scenes taking place in parallel contexts around the world, each location presents a new scene and dialogue between performance art action, fashion, choreography and sound, blurring the lines between these creative fields, with the outcome of a new language of expression. The scenes present audio visual jam sessions , using the tools of choreography and fashion together with technological body instruments and old craft techniques.

fashion returning to phantasy and free spirit; a pure expression of creativity; individuals interpreting the set up of a garden party, performing in an interwoven textile architecture detached/free from esthetic expectations, commercial reasoning and categorical thinking.
a textile architecture is generating an architecture of sounds.

pelican avenue is a label run by Carolin Lerch. Lerch was born in Austria and moved to Belgium in 1995, to study fashion at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Antwerp. After working for Bernhard Willhelm, she established her own label in 2004 to question the conventional codes of fashion and oppose the constantly changing trends of the Western fashion industry. Consequently she elaborates her projects through a wide range of media, from photography and video to installation and performance. Therefore she also works together with multimedia artist Michiel Helbig using their common platform pelican video.
